

blog music links at

« The Pervert's Guide to Cinema « More Reviews Coming

Fido

Director: Andrew Currie
Country: Canada
Year: 2006

Fido is an excellent first effort from Canadian director Andrew Currie. Who knew that combining 50's kitsch with zombies would result in such a funny movie.

Space dust has caused the dead to re-animate and a corporation, ZomCom, has developed a "domestication" which eliminates a zombie's cravings for flesh and makes them as tame as a house pet. Everyone has a zombie except the Robinsons. When they finally get one, it becomes Timmy Robinson's new best friend, naming it "Fido". Things start to get out of hand when Fido's collar deactivates and people start to go missing.

The movie really captures the look and colours of the 50's and the underlying political message is probably more true to what's happening in the world presently than we'd like to admit.

Having gained studio backing while still in the script stage, Fido will be seeing a fairly wide release world wide. I expect it should do quite well.

This entry was posted on Sunday, September 10th, 2006 at 10:12 pm and is filed under Movies, TIFF. You can follow any response to this entry through the RSS 2.0 feed. You can leave a response, or trackback from your own site.

One Response to "Fido"

1. ChantelleJoy Says:
September 11th, 2006 at 2:37 am

Hey, I found your site via the TIFF Blogs. I'll definitely be coming back to see more of your reviews. I really wished I could have seen both Borat & Fido.. and am *really* looking forward to Severance. Bye for now

Leave a Reply

Name (required)

Mail (will not be published) (required)

Website